MASON & Dixon Line

The boundary line between the state of Maryland and Pennsylvania as run by 2 distinguished English surveyors; Charles MASON and Jeremiah Dixon in the years 1763-1767. The line settled a dispute between the 2 states over their respective boundaries as described in their Charters. Before the Civil War, the phrase "Mason & Dixon line" was used to indicate the dividing line between the free and slave states and at present the town continues to be used to designate the dividing line between the South and the North. A re-survey of the line was authorized by Pennsylvania and Maryland in 1849 and again in 1900.
